

Re-planting of Palms along 2nd Street

Parks and Recreation, Don Easterby, center, with workers on either side.

Twelve mature Queen Palms, *syagrus romazoffiana, were planted on the narrow median on Second St on Feb. 15 and 16 by Don Easterby's crew. The smaller palms were not thriving and were removed so more mature palms could be planted. They discovered there was little dirt and lots of concrete under the grass. Rather than give up on the project, Don went to work with Art Cox of Public Works, using Dig Alert data, historic blue prints, and line detector information. His research revealed that the underground impediments were merely old curbs, sidewalks, and blacktop, so the project proceeded. His crew dug twelve large holes and punched through the obstacles with a Hydro Hammer. Rolling Hills Nursery delivered and planted the graceful palms, selected by Don, using their soil and workers. Don's goal was "A strong stand of regal, mature palms" and we will all enjoy seeing them thrive and mature adding beauty to the vista of Second Street .

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE:

Have you all noticed the lovely new palms on 2nd Street? Also the City planted forty additional Pride of Madeira on the Applan Way on-ramp. It's always wonderful to see Naples looking nicer, particularly when NIGC doesn't have to pay or do all the work.

The next General Meeting will be a busy one. We need every available active member to attend. As you know, we need a quorum to vote on the new Bylaws. Thanks to Trish and Pat, each active member received a copy of the proposed Bylaws in advance of the February Meeting. Then during the February meeting there was an opportunity for a comprehensive question and answer period to address any confusion or concerns. Now at the March Meeting, it's time to vote on the proposed amendments to our Bylaws.

In addition to the much anticipated Trish Schooley presentation, we also hope to congratulate and thank Gary De Long for all of his efforts in assisting us with our various Beautification Projects over the years. Although we've tried not to be pesky, we know that a less amiable person might not have been as receptive or gracious as Mr. DeLong. He has always been someone NIGC could contact when we needed support to further our efforts and he will be greatly missed as councilman for the 3rd District.

Also, at the next meeting, the membership will select a nominating committee for our next president and officers. By then you will have received your "green sheet" in the Poppy. So please take some time to consider your interests, the best use of your talents, the friends you'd like to work with and/or the new friends you'd like to make.

Turn in your selections at the meeting. You will also be receiving an invitation to the Flower Show in the same Poppy.

As always, our members are busy, busy. Marilyn has firmed up the arrangements for our excursion to Descanso Gardens. Gloria and Ruth have been planning Arbor Day for April 3. Sandy has been sprucing up the hedges at the Fountain. Lynette has been making plans for the Flower Show. Patti has been supervising pots and tree wells.

Thank you to all the hardworking ladies mentioned and unmentioned in the NIGC.

FLOWER SHOW

"Springtime in Paris"

Time: 11:30 a.m.

Place: Long Beach Yacht Club

Date: Tuesday, April 15th

Imagine, you're in France strolling along the Champs De Elysee, people are enjoying their coffee at quaint outdoor cafes, and it's such a beautiful day. The smiles, the scents, there's something very special in the air, and then it hits you – "It's Springtime in Paris".

I hope this generates a great deal of enthusiasm and creativity as the theme for our Annual Flower Show. All members are encouraged to participate and to show off the beauty of our wonderful neighborhood gardens.
Whether it's an elaborate display, an unusual table setting or a simple teacup arrangement, display your talent and invite your friends to join us.

Lynette Sewell, Flower Show chairman

RESERVATIONS

HORTICULTURE

Weeds: Here, There and Everywhere - even in your salad

Some of those nuisance volunteers we call weeds are actually wild plants that somehow just landed in the wrong place. Many are edible wild herbs with nutritional and/or medicinal benefits. In the eye of the many beholders, some are beautiful while others aren't. "What is it?" and "Where did it originate?" two questions to stump us especially if the volunteer is unusually odd or lovely. Sometimes a weed is simply a hardy wallflower waiting in the wings before being accepted through the garden gate. If it survives a weeding frenzy, a gust of wind will carry off its seeds from spent blooms to take root elsewhere, perhaps in your own back yard. Before you yank this volunteer up by its roots, consider these few points and the benefits they can provide:

They are necessary. In many cases where land is uninhabited they prevent erosion. Tumbleweeds provided fodder for our early pioneers' livestock; cattle would have starved without them. Wild creatures find shelter in their clustered brambles; seeds and sometimes berries provide food, blooms offer up nectar for bees. Feathered squadrons import some during their migrations. Historically, these airborne Johnny Appleseeds sowed seeds, enriched barren lands and provided food to primitive people before the birth of agriculture.

Weeding, as often as you want, is preferable to using herbicides that kill off beneficial microorganisms. WEEDS ARE HERE TO STAY. You can limit their invasive nature by leaving some space and breathing room around your plants. This extra space facilitates your spotting weeds when they first appear when their roots are delicate and easier to tug out.

'Wild Weed Salad'

Gather up a mélange of tender, edible wild herbs; prepare them as you would common salad greens. Prepare a dressing of pomegranate vinegar or lemon juice paired with grape seed oil. No need for Dijon, garlic or pepper, the weeds will provide all the zing you need.

FEBRUARY PROGRAM

Program Chair, Edie Graber; speaker, Virginia Baxter and President, Kathy Owens.

“First Ladies and Flowers.”

Hilarious, witty, fun and informative! Our February speaker Virginia Baxter, Executive Director at Long Beach City College, regaled us with a history of some of our First Ladies and their involvement with horticulture. She kept us totally captivated beginning with Martha Washington and Martha Jefferson who both grew gardens for medicinal purposes. After Mt. Vernon went bankrupt and was taken over by the Ladies Association, it began a legacy of tributes to women.

Eleanor Roosevelt planted a Vegetable Victory Garden and currently, Mrs. Obama also planted a vegetable garden to encourage healthy eating habits.

The first cherry blossom trees were introduced from Japan by Helen Taft.

Left: President Wilson’s wife, Ellen, created the White House Rose Garden, which in time, because of its beauty, became a place for dignitary meetings and where Trisha Nixon was married.

Pat Nixon was the first to open the White House garden to public tours.

Lady Bird Johnson, left, was honored with a grove of trees named for her because of her work cleaning up of billboards along our highways and her involvement with school children to beautified parks and school grounds.

At right: Nancy Reagan loved Poinsettias and always returned to the White House from California with flowers grown in her home State.

Jackie Kennedy left, was the first to have a White House florist who used flowers from the garden to create arrangements in every room of the White House. Jackie also had crab apples and tulips planted in the garden as did Beth Truman.

In memory of his wife, Rachel, Andrew Jackson planted a magnolia tree at the White House and it remains there today.
